> Therefore, Sentimental New York Is Increasingly Pessimistic-Leading Stocks Decline Heavily.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.-There was no very aggressive bull spirit manifest from the outset in to-day's stock market, although there was some support for special stocks from time to time, and a rather halting attempt made to revive the spirit of the bulls by bidding up a group of specialties about midday. The demand for stocks, however, was at a minimum and prices kept sagging to a lower level. The pressure was not severe through the great part of the day, but gained force and in the last hour of the session became acute. The bears added their selling to the realizing and uncovered stop-loss orders. The realizing was by recent speculative buyers evidently, as was shown by the conspicuous weakness of those stocks which have been under recent manipulation for the advance. [Meyer & Kiser's Telegram.] NEW YORK, Oct. 28 .- During the first inactive, irregular and without any decided tendency. The railroad stocks were inclined to strength after the opening. while Amalgamated Copper was weak. People's Gas advanced rather sharply on covering of shorts on the expectation of a favorable decision in regard to the quo warranto proceedings in Chicago, and the Gould stocks, especially Missouri Pacific and Manhattan, showed marked strength. Trading was, however, light and toward noon prices began to yield. There was no particular news, but the fact that many showed a rising tendency and that there was no fresh news in regard to the Northern Pacific situation encouraged the professional element to sell stocks, and this selling disclosed the fact that not only were commission houses not supporting the market, but that they had a good many stop loss orders on the way down. The selling in Amalgamated Copper was mainly through the same house that has been a that shippers had few important orders. heavy seller for some days. Heavy Selling of Copper.

[Granger Farwell & Co.'s Telegram.] NEW YORK, Oct. 28.-The market at the opening was barely steady and there was a good deal of realizing. SOLD BEEF ON SUNDAY.

But Because It Was Smoked He Was Not Fined. New York Telegraph.

Remarks have been made in certain quarters to the effect that all flesh is grass. This doubtiess is true in a figurative way, APOLIS, Oct. 28.—Cattle—Receipts none; but there is grass and grass. Some grass shipments none. The market was steady to is green and some is dried and called hay. So it would appear is flesh. This is the strong. Good butcher stock especially finds a strong market. Quotations: It was Martin S. Barry, of 795 Greenwich Good to prime export steers, 1,350 street, arrested yesterday by Anderson, a policeman, for he crime of selling meat on Fair to medium export steers, Sunday, who raised the novel point of law that he did not sell fresh meat at all and Good to prime butcher steers, 1,100 therefore was not amenable. What he did sell, he said, was smoked beef. "Your point," said Magistrate Pool, "is certainly well taken, and I shall discharge you at once. The magistrate turned a stern glance on the policeman, who quailed before it. "I cannot see why you should arrest this man," he said. "He was engaged lawfully in his calling, and you had no right to interfere. The law says that no fresh meat shall be sold on the Sabbath day. It says nothing about salt beef, or smoked beef, or ham or bacon. So far as I am concerned this man may go on selling smoked beef till

If Magistrate Pool's reading of the law is adopted generally, and he is said to be considered a good lawyer by the Board of Magistrates, the butchers, it is pointed out, may see a gleam of hope for them, and salted meats will become very popular in the city.

How much salt it takes to convert fresh beef into a salable article for Sunday, it is added, remains to be shown. Attention is called by those wise in the Good light hogs sold for $6, but most of the law to the fact that many of the noble light mixed sold from $5.85 to $5.95. All practitioners of the butchers' arts have been known to indulge in nicotian delights. If one were to indulge in a fragrant havana, it is asked, while engaged in cutting beef, could he not escape a fine or imprisonment by swearing that the beef was smoked, albeit slightly? All the eminent slaughter house lawyers probably will cogitate over the matter during the current week. Profits in Plays.

Philadelphia Record. "If a man has to write for a living, by all means let him write for the stage," said a man of recognized literary authority yesterday. "Of course, in order to become a successful dramatist, it is necessary to make an exhaustive study of what is known as stagecraft, which counts for more than literary ability. From a purely financial point of view, the returns are so much greater than can be derived from any other form of writing that it is no wonder the market is overstocked with mediocre and worthless plays. But the successful playwright has an easy time of it. When Lorimer Stoddard died the other day, only at $40,000, all made from royalties on three or four plays. I venture to say that is more than his venerable father, Richard critic, has made from his pen, although he has been a leading figure in the world of letters ever since the days when he was a contemporary of Poe. The old man is seventy-six now, and is still in the harness, grinding away on the editorial staff of a New York newspaper. That's why I say write plays if you can."
